

IT'S NOT YOU. IT'S THEM.

A CAREER GUIDE BY NICK TANG | @NICKHTANG ON X

This is an amazing age of opportunity. Opportunities that your parents, professors and teachers never had. Because you have all the information to succeed. My goal? To help you succeed.

I give you permission to break the rules. To stand out. To bypass the online application process. To contact the CEO/VP you want to work for. Instead of standing in line with 100s of other resumes in a database.

Failure is good. That's how top athletes and actors feel when things don't go their way. They step OUT of the line while everyone else queues up. Don't beat yourself up for failing. Because I already gave you permission.

University/college gives you the credentials. Creating or joining a club gives you the skills to get a career. You need both.

Oh, You're Going To Hate Me For Writing This.

- 1 The industry or company you want to work for has real problems. They're not found on LinkedIn. They're found by visiting your library and befriending the reference librarian.
- 2 Close all your job hunting tabs right now. Mingle with the people you want to work for — online or offline. Volunteer for an industry organization. Use X/Twitter to build in public. Add value before you ask for anything.
- 3 Getting ghosted by the C-suite is good. It means you move on immediately. Instead of waiting three weeks for an HR email that was written by the same algorithm that rejected you in 20 seconds.

Your Prime Starts Now.

"Your prime is not in your 20s. Your prime is the moment you realize nobody is coming to save you and you have to do the work on your own."

Not HR. Not the algorithm. Not Indeed. Just you.

That's why I'm here. Book a free 30-minute discovery call with me.
